HVE MOBILIZATION BEHAVIORAL INDICATORS

The indicators of violent extremist mobilization described herein are intended to provide a roadmap of observable behaviors that could inform whether individuals or groups are preparing to engage in violent extremist activities. This includes the potential for individuals to seek to travel overseas to join a foreign terrorist organization (FTO), such as the Islamic State of Iraq and ash-Sham (ISIS) or al-Qa'ida. The indicators are grouped by their assessed levels of diagnosticity—meaning how clearly we judge the behavior demonstrates an individual's trajectory toward terrorist activity. The list also includes additional information concerning what the behavior could indicate, identifies likely observers, and provides a probable timeframe between behavior and an ultimate violent act. NCTC emphasizes that many of these signals or indicators—some of which might involve constitutionally protected activities—may be insignificant on their own. However, when such signals or indicators are observed in combination with other suspicious behaviors, they may constitute a basis for reporting. Law enforcement action should not be taken solely based on the exercise of constitutionally protected activities or on the apparent race, ethnicity, national origin or religion of the subject, or on any combination of any such factors.

BACKGROUND

By law, the National Counterterrorism Center (NCTC) focuses on international terrorism. Senior Intelligence Community officials judge that violent extremists inspired or enabled by ISIS and al-Qa'ida, including their allies and affiliates, are among the most lethal international terrorist threats to the Homeland. This product focuses on the threat from those actors.

In 2014, an interagency analytic focus group, including experts from the Intelligence Community, and law enforcement collaboratively developed the list of behavioral indicators and ranked them into three tiers of diagnosticity.

GROUP INDICATORS

GROUP A Indicators are very diagnostic on their own.

GROUP B Indicators are moderately diagnostic, more so when observed with other indicators.

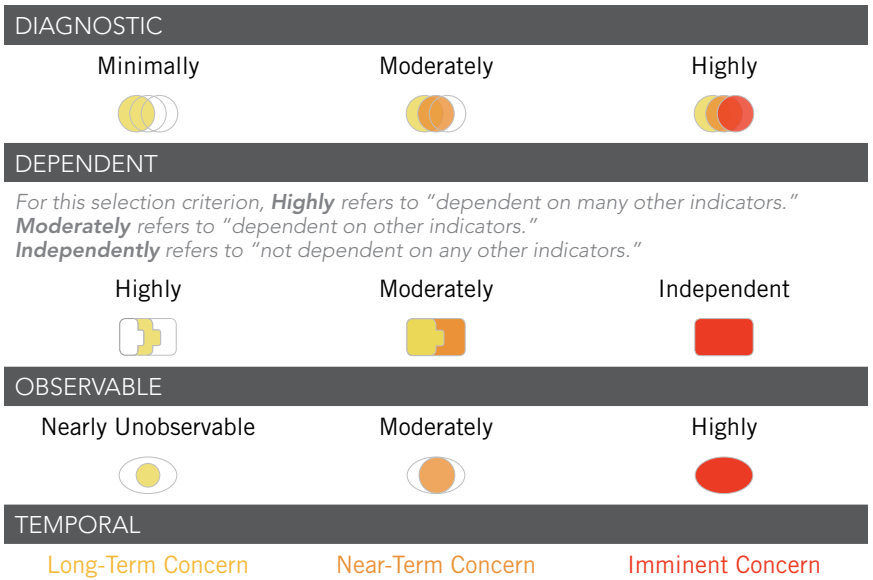

GROUP C Indicators are minimally diagnostic on their own and require the presence of other indicators to gain diagnosticity.

Nothing in this list of indicators is intended to confer additional authorities to law enforcement beyond that which is provided by federal, state, and local laws and regulations. Officers who believe individuals are exhibiting significant mobilization indicators are encouraged to immediately contact the local FBI Joint Terrorism Task Force.

HOMEGROWN VIOLENT EXTREMIST MOBILIZATION INDICATORS FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

WHAT IS A HOMEGROWN VIOLENT EXTREMIST?

A homegrown violent extremist (HVE) is a person of any citizenship who has lived and/or operated primarily in the United States or its territories who advocates, is engaged in, or is preparing to engage in ideologically motivated terrorist activities (including providing support to terrorism) in furtherance of political or social objectives promoted by a foreign terrorist organization (FTO), but who is acting independently of direction by an FTO. Because HVEs are acting to further the goals of an FTO, they are considered foreign intelligence threats under the authorities of the Intelligence Community and domestic public safety entities.

WHY WAS THIS BOOKLET CREATED?

We face a heightened threat environment in the United States as HVEs heed the call to violence from FTOs, including ISIS, al-Qa'ida, and other violent jihadist groups.

- HVE attacks in California, Colorado, Florida, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and Texas, as well as attacks in other Western countries, have added urgency to the publication of this booklet.

We published this booklet to inform our potential bystanders about what signals—or indicators—we judge HVEs, particularly those inspired or enabled by ISIS or al-Qa'ida, might display that could potentially be detected by first responder personnel and other people. As indicated earlier in this publication, NCTC emphasizes that many of these signals or indicators—some of which might involve constitutionally protected activities—may be insignificant on their own. However, when such signals or indicators are observed in combination with other suspicious behaviors, they may constitute a basis for reporting. Law enforcement action should not be taken solely based on the exercise of constitutionally protected activities or on the apparent race, ethnicity, national origin or religion of the subject, or on any combination of any such factors.

If members of the public suspect—based on these indicators—that an individual is mobilizing to violence, they should contact law enforcement.

HOW WAS THIS BOOKLET DEVELOPED? WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY 'DIAGNOSTICITY?'

NCTC conceptualized this booklet with the help of an interagency focus group, including officers from the FBI, the DHS, cleared representatives of state and local law enforcement agencies, and subject matter experts. We decided to broadly publish it for public safety officials, to address the obvious need to inform those on the front lines of the effort to detect violent extremists in the United States.

The group determined that the ideal manner of listing indicators would be by diagnosticity—the extent to which behaviors indicate violent mobilization—instead of by measuring how often the behaviors have been reported in past cases. The highest tier of behaviors would most likely indicate mobilization, behaviors in the middle tier would indicate mobilization when observed with other indicators, while the behaviors in the lowest tier would only likely indicate violent mobilization when combined with multiple other behaviors.

- An example of a Group A highest-tier behavior or hard indicator is the potential observation of an individual preparing and posting a last will or martyrdom video or statement to the Internet. The group judged that this behavior would be diagnostic on its own and may be observable if shared with or otherwise discovered by family, friends, and bystanders, and online and social media contacts.
- Examples of Group C lowest-tier behaviors or soft indicators would be those that on their own do not suggest mobilization, but when taken together would become more diagnostic. None of those behaviors, by themselves, conclusively signal violent mobilization.
- The behaviors noted in the booklet were based on a review of information derived from dozens of FBI terrorism investigations over the past three years and peer-reviewed academic studies concerning violent mobilization and active shooters, and on brainstorming sessions by focus group members.

WHY DOESN'T THIS BOOKLET INCLUDE VIOLENT NEO-NAZIS, VIOLENT ANTI-FASCIST GROUPS, VIOLENT SINGLE-ISSUE EXTREMISTS, VIOLENT ANTI-POLICE EXTREMISTS, ETC?

By law, NCTC focuses on international terrorism, which includes people in the United States who are inspired or enabled by FTOs. Senior Intelligence Community officials judge that violent extremists inspired or enabled by ISIS and al-Qa'ida, including their allies and affiliates, are among the most lethal international terrorist threats to the Homeland. This booklet focuses on those actors.

Certainly, behaviors exist and are noted in this booklet that would be troubling regardless of whether they were motivated by an FTO, a domestic violent extremist group, or a personal grievance, (e.g., seeking religious or political justification for a violent act), and may warrant contacting law enforcement. However, this document is focused on individuals or groups that are inspired or enabled by FTOs, including ISIS, al-Qa'ida, and their affiliates and allies.

WHAT SHOULD I DO IF I THINK AN INDIVIDUAL IS ENGAGING IN BEHAVIORS THAT LINE UP WITH THE INDICATORS IN THIS BOOKLET?

NCTC cannot mandate action; however, the Center strongly encourages notification of the closest FBI office at <https://tips.fbi.gov> or via telephone at 1-800-CALLFBI. In case of an emergency, please call 9-1-1.

WHY CAN'T LAW ENFORCEMENT DO ALL OF THIS ITSELF; WHY INVOLVE THE GENERAL PUBLIC?

We are all in this together. We continue to see that third-party bystanders—such as family members and peers—are often best positioned to witness signs of radicalization or mobilization to violence.

Bystanders almost always are the first to detect hints that an individual may be considering violent action in the Homeland or overseas.
